pakistan has over the decades become a hotbed for the terrorist ideology often referred to as jihadism this book investigates the underlying principles of pakistan s foreign policy from 1947 until the present day and explains the rise of jihadism as an offshoot of pakistan s security concerns the book goes on to discuss that from its inception as a separate state pakistan s foreign policy focused on seeking parity with india and escaping from an indian south asian identity the desire to achieve parity with its much larger neighbour led pakistan to seek the assistance and support of allies the author analyses the relationship pakistan has with afghanistan united states china and the muslim world and looks at how these relationships are based on the desire that military economic and diplomatic aid from these countries would bolster pakistan s meagre resources in countering indian economic and military strength the book presents an interesting contribution to south asian studies as well as studies on international relations and foreign policy with these questions in mind professor kapur charts the continuous power struggles of pakistan s ruling elites using a historical and comparative approach he shows how the search for democracy and national identity has been hindered by army intervention political intrigue and the failure of islam to unite the various ethnic factions while pessimistic about the chances for democracy in pakistan he hopes that the democratic pluralism and broad based political activity emerging in much of eastern europe and the third world will inspire ordinary pakistanis to transform their country into a nation in spirit as well as all political decision making processes reflect the interaction of different utility maximising actors politicians voters bureaucrats and interest groups theoretical literature on the subject is not conclusive and thus far little empirical work exists this study presents an econometric analysis of the allocation of development aid to pakistan based on a political economic framework of aid allocation looking at bi and multilateral aid to pakistan from 1960 to 2002 results suggest that aid flows to pakistan are highly motivated by special interests within donor countries and international financial institutions ifis looking more specifically at bilateral aid and especially aid by the single largest donor to pakistan i e the us analysis suggests that pakistan and indian ethnic lobbies could play a role in aid flows and in the passage of two important amendments the pressler and brown amendments in us aid authorisation bills regarding aid to pakistan analysis of multilateral financial flows to pakistan shows that pakistan receives a large amount of lending but with considerable variations over time to some extent personal contacts of pakistani international civil servants appear to play a role in multilateral lending to pakistan along with major shareholders economic interests the sustainable development of minerals which are non renewable resources is a major challenge in today s world in this regard the true definition of sustainability is a debating point in itself can such a concept exist with respect to non renewable resources perhaps the ideal sustainability model is one that minimizes negative environmental impact and maximizes benefits to society the economy and regional national development developed and near developed economies rely for commodity supplies on developing countries where major mining operations are often a mainstay of the domestic economy limited environmental regulation and low wages lead to charges of exploitation also large numbers of people have no alternative to living by informal often dangerous artisanal mining this special publication gives examples from developing countries from all scales of mineral extraction the volume reviews environmental economic health and social problems and highlights the need to solve these before sustainability can be achieved the better solutions require mutual understanding through full involvement of all stakeholders education training and investment so that small scale and artisanal mines can grow into well managed operations at larger scales most major international mining companies have now improved their practices and are monitoring their progress although there is no room for complacency in this rapidly changing area
