this book expands anthropological studies of business enterprise to include comparative and interdisciplinary perspectives a number of books on business anthropology have been published but most of them are written by anthropologists alone by contrast this book engages interdisciplinary studies e g not only by anthropologists but also management scholars and other social scientists it is the second volume of studies forwarding anthropological approaches to business administration keiei jinruigaku this volume focusses on the cultural dimensions of enterprise here enterprise is viewed as a medium carrying culture rather than solely an entity of production and management as is typical in mainstream studies the approach is based on tadao umesao s definition of culture as a projection of instruments devices and institutions into the mental spiritual dimensions of life therefore in our view production and management are among the projections of the cultural aspects of enterprise this perspective we believe constitutes a new frontier in the study of business administration this book consists of three parts the first being religiosity and spirituality the second exhibitions performance and inducement and the third history and story in part i quaker codes ex votos and spiritual leadership are discussed in relation to management and behavior and miracles and pilgrimage part ii describes exhibitions justifying nuclear power industry within power plants in both japan and england the exhibition by english families of their porcelain collections and the performance skills of orchestral maestros all of these examples indicate that through the use of narratives and myths exhibits and performances overtly and covertly induce visitors or audiences to certain viewpoints and emotions part iii offers examples of histories and stories of enterprise articulated through the branding and consumption of industrial products and their display in enterprise museums where the essence of culture and heritage is cherished and emphasized by and for the wider community and the enterprise itself conjoined as an interdisciplinary team of western and japanese researchers we apply an anthropological approach to the cultural history of enterprise in both britain and japan this book proposes a radically different anthropological approach to the development and dissemination of mobile health mhealth a rapidly growing sector in healthcare an anthropological approach to mhealth is based on ten 16 month ethnographies in settings across asia africa europe and latin america that showed how conventional health apps may be irrelevant particularly for older people instead the studies found that many people use their mobile and smartphones for health purposes to a surprising extent they take the communicative apps they have become comfortable with such as line wechat and whatsapp and are highly creative in turning them into their own health apps these are the practices from which this book seeks to learn in what we call a smart from below approach this body of research also provided many additional insights including the consequences of googling for health information the role of the smartphone in specific settings such as an oncology clinic in chile or tele psychotherapy in uganda and the lessons learnt during covid 19 around the problems in self tracking overall the authors show how an anthropological approach situated in the observation of everyday life can be the foundation for an alternative but highly promising perspective on the future of mhealth this book concerns barter a transaction in which objects are exchanged directly for one another without the use of money economists treat barter as an inefficient alternative to market exchange and assume that it is normal only in primitive economies or marks the breakdown of more developed exchange mechanisms for their part anthropologists have been more interested in the social and moral complexities of the gift and treat barter dismissively as mere haggling the authors of this collection do not accept that barter occupies a residual space between monetary and gift economies using accounts from different parts of the world they aim to demonstrate that it is more than a simple and self evident economic institution barter may constitute a mode of exchange with its own social characteristics occupying a specific moral space this novel treatment of barter represents an original and topical addition to the literature on economic anthropology violence expressed explores the diverse expressions and manifestations through which the meaning of violent experiences and events is re produced as language alone does not always suffice for the description of violence this book focuses not only on the verbal and discursive expressions of violence but also on the performative acts material culture and the spaces that constitute these expressions such an approach provides a method of more comprehensively registering and understanding the manifestations and long lasting effects of violence whilst exploring violence both as an extreme subjective experience and the ultimate truth thus overcoming a common epistemological antagonism in researching violence offering a variety of analytical approaches and methodological perspectives violence expressed presents the latest empirical studies ranging from the everyday violence experienced by children stories of rape social memory and the discrepancy between private and public narratives to rumours and silences or the iconography of violence a compelling contribution to ongoing discussions on anthropological writing this book will be of interest to anthropologists and social scientists working on violence gender collective representations and memory toward an anthropology of the will is the first book that systematically explores volition from an ethnographically informed anthropological point of view while philosophers have for centuries puzzled over the degree to which individuals are free to choose how to act in the world anthropologists have either assumed that the will is a stable constant fact of the human condition or simply ignored it although they are usually quite comfortable discussing the relationship between culture and cognition or culture and emotion anthropologists have not yet focused on how culture and volition are interconnected the contributors to this book draw upon their unique insights and research experience to address fundamental questions including what forms does the will take in culture how is willing experienced how does it relate to emotion and cognition what does imagination have to do with willing what is the connection between morality virtue and willing exploring such questions the book moves beyond old debates about freedom and determinacy to demonstrate how a richly nuanced anthropological approach to the cultural experience of willing can help shape theories of social action in the human sciences
