Italy possesses two literary canons one in the Tuscan language and the other made up of the various dialects of its many regions the other Italy presents for the first time an overview of the principal authors and texts of Italy's literary canon in dialect it highlights the cultivated dialect poetry drama and narrative prose since the codification of the Tuscan literary language in the early sixteenth century when writing in dialect became a deliberate and conscious alternative to the official literary standard the book offers a panorama of the literary dialects of Italy over five centuries and across the country's regions shedding light on a profoundly plurilingual and polycentric civilization as a guide to reading and research it provides a compendium of literary sources in dialect arranged by region and accompanied by syntheses of regional traditions with selected textual illustrations a work of extraordinary importance the other Italy was awarded the Modern Language Association of America's Aldo and Jean Scaglione publication award for a manuscript in Italian literary studies it will serve scholars as an indispensable resource book for years to come

Race as narrative in Italian women's writing since unification explores racist ideas and critiques of racism in four long narratives by female authors Grazia Deledda Matilde Serao Natalia Ginzburg and Gabriella Ghermandi who wrote in Italy after national unification starting from the premise that race is a political and socio-historical construction Melissa Coburn makes the argument that race is also a narrative construction this is true in that many narratives have contributed to the historical construction of the idea of race it is also true in that the concept of race metaphorically reflects certain formal qualities of narration Coburn demonstrates that at least four sets of qualities are common among narratives and central to the development of race discourse intertextuality the processes of characterization plot and tropes the tension between the projections of individual group and universal identities and the processes of identification and otherness these four sets of qualities become organizing principles of the four sequential chapters paralleling a sequential focus on the four different narrative authors the juxtaposition of these close contextualized readings demonstrates salient continuities and discontinuities within race discourse over the period examined revealing subtleties in the historical record overlooked by previous studies
