the two most interesting governments in the world are those of India and China together they control the lives and well being of 2.3 billion people Bingman's book analyzes their similarities and critical differences both remain heavily linked to their farms and villages but in both the future is in the cities Bingman analyzes their new economic policies the rise of new middle classes and their disturbing inability to provide adequate social services both are struggling with seriously flawed governments China remains a top down tyranny India's government is bottom up and wildly chaotic essay from the year 2017 in the subject history miscellaneous university of Calcutta Indian Statistical Institute course masters language English abstract this essay is about using a semiotic angle to evaluate the existence and activities of a soldier and a revolutionary in a stratified manner the most common definitional difference between a soldier and a revolutionary is that a soldier is a person who serves in an army and obeys orders given to him by a government and a revolutionary is someone who is involved in causing a complete or dramatic change in a society country or in the international sphere my concern here is the projection of a soldier who is a part of a national government and a revolutionary in both national and international sphere the word soldier is used almost unanimously in a positive sense but the word revolutionary is used in both positive and negative sense the reason is a soldier is always on the government s side whereas a revolutionary stands against the government i am not here taking into account the notion of government in exile as i am here dealing with a country s electorally elected government and a government in exile is also a revolutionary government or organization and it stands on the opposite side of an electorally elected government
