the art of urbanization reexamines a forgotten tradition in belgian and european planning history reconstructed through a longitudinal analysis of the study committee of the antwerp agglomeration 1907 1939 against prevailing trends antwerp s urban expansion was not the product of rational master planning but evolved gradually through collective and pragmatic responses to emerging urban questions drawing on a wide range of historical sources and richly illustrated the book reconstructs how numerous sub plans each addressing economic sociocultural political and ecological needs coalesced into the incremental components of a reasoned and dynamic urban agglomeration as it engages with classical concepts in urban theory and global urban history the art of urbanization is presented as a generative redistributive reproductive and situated worlding practice offering a fresh perspective on urbanism that resonates in our current age of planetary urbanization the idea of cultural reproduction was first developed by bourdieu 1973 who sees the function of the education system as being to reproduce the culture of the dominant classes thus helping to ensure their continued dominance through his concepts of cultural capital and habitus bourdieu s influence spread into other areas of socialization and high culture however despite the complex of influences that contribute to bourdieu s method sociologists of culture and students of cultural studies seem to have picked up on the negative and critical elements in the work in particular they developed the metaphor of reproduction as copy or imitation rather than reproduction as regeneration and synthesis as a consequence cultural reproduction has become part of the orthodoxy of studies in the theory of ideology and neo marxisms while still addressing this well established theme of ideology and structural determinacy in cultural reproduction theory this collection of original essays seeks also to explore other possibilities in terms of ethnomethodology durkheimianism structuralism and post structuralism many of the arguments put forward also confront the most contemporary challenges presented by postmodernism the papers address an unusually wide spectrum of cultural formations including gender roles fine art film journalism education consumerism style language and sociology itself the introduction discusses the origin and development of the concept of cultural reproduction and shows the variety of analytic possibilities within several traditions of social theorizing all later expanded in the body of the text most of the contributors are academics working in the area of sociology of communication studies all of them have taught in and have continuing research interests in the sociology of culture and cultural studies
