mark cuban went on to build iconic household brands why didn't their former employers hang onto to these people and why are most big companies unable to create as much value as the world's 800 self made billionaires billionaires aren't necessarily luckier smarter or harder working than the rest of us and they rarely build something brand new the key difference is their mindset they redefine what's possible and they are critical to any company looking to create massive value the self made billionaire effect breaks down the five critical habits of massive value creators so you can learn how to identify encourage and retain them and even become one yourself it will forever change the way you think about talent and business value john j sviokla is the head of global thought leadership with pricewaterhousecoopers he is a frequent speaker on innovation growth and customer behavior in addition to working with clients john serves on pwc's advisory leadership group and global thought leadership council he was on the faculty of the harvard business school for ten years and has written for harvard business review the wall street journal financial times and sloan management review mitch cohen is pwc's vice chairman during his 33 years at the firm and 20 years as a partner cohen has held a variety of leadership roles and served numerous fortune 500 clients the deluxe edition of the self made billionaire effect includes seven videos of authors john sviokla and mitch cohen expanding on the book's themes and their findings along with behind the scenes insights into what makes self made billionaires unique a study of self made billionaires reveals the key distinction between producers and performers there are about 800 self made billionaires in the world today what enables this elite group to create truly massive value and what can the rest of us learn from them john sviokla and mitch cohen set out to answer this question with the first systematic study of 120 self made billionaires including extensive interviews with icons like steve case mark cuban and t boone pickens jr the authors conclude that self made billionaires aren't necessarily smarter harder working or luckier than their peers the key difference is what they call the producer mindset in contrast to the far more common performer mindset performers strive to excel in well defined areas and they are essential to any company but producers are even more valuable because they redefine what's possible rather than simply meeting pre existing goals and standards producers think up entirely new products services strategies and business models with dramatic results this book offers fresh stories and insights into producers habits of mind it also provides corporate leaders with a new approach to selecting and managing breakthrough talent and advice about innovation and value creation for aspiring leaders or entrepreneurs this book was written for people who probably feel they never need it its main purpose is to motivate and encourage the reader wherever and whenever they are that it is possible to rise up do better and excel as a person it is easy to get into the trap of daily painful existence blaming circumstances the environment other people and things around us for our negative outcomes in life none of us love to remain poor or insignificant we all want to achieve and attain status in life we all love to excel yet very few of us do the book argues with compelling stories and evidence from history science society and academiathat human destiny in its most crude form is like a garden when left alone a garden only grows with useless weeds but when good seeds are sown in it the ground is well cultivated the crops cared for and the garden teeming lively with crops that feed us well the author shares with the reader his personal experiences and those of scores of other people in the world to demonstrate the indomitable power of the human being to get better spiced with easy witty poems and scores of true stories the book convinces the reader of their power to excel the book does this using sequential themes built around eight instructively captivating chapters as follows 1 leap forward and get better 2 use your power you are more powerful than you think 3 pursue excellence it is your calling 4 avoid mediocrity and all its roots 5 accept that you are different 6 dedicate yourself to service and when you do all these and you realize it is tough 7 take heart the world seldom cheers excellence 8 now do this and leap forward
