global cities all over the world are taking on new roles as they increasingly participate directly and independently in international affairs and global politics so far surprisingly few studies have analyzed the role of the global city beyond its already well explicated role in the globalized economy how is it that local governments of global cities claim international political authority and develop what appears to be their own independent foreign and security policies despite the fact that such policy areas have traditionally been considered to be the core function of nation states and central governments what does it mean to be and to govern the contemporary global city in this book kristin ljunckvist claims that we can better understand why local governments find it to be in their global city's interest to claim international political authority by exploring how the city's role in the globalized world is constructed and narrated locally a core claim is that global city hood as a specific type of collective identity can play a constitutive part in such interest formation combining insights from international relations and urban studies scholarship and with the help of a case study on new york city ljunckvist develops a new analytical framework for studying the global city as an international political actor the global city 2.0 shows that even as the global city engages in various global issues such as global environmental governance or counterterrorism such pursuit will be framed and rationalized in terms of the city's economic growth the quest for growth and global competitiveness are not necessarily the only available meanings attached to the being and governing of the contemporary global city however there seems to be a remarkable persistency and attraction in economistic ideas and an economistic conception of the global city future cities for the first time in human history more than 50 of the world's population lives in urban regions cities are the largest most complex and most dynamic man made systems they are vibrant centers of cultural life and engines that drive the global economy contemporary cities are environmentally socially and economically unsustainable the quality of urban life is threatened by such factors as pollution rising temperatures limited resources congestion social inequalities aging of large sectors of the world population poverty informality crime and economic imbalances the overall planning of future cities is a challenge that can only be faced by interdisciplinary teams combining multitudes of backgrounds and expertise ecaade education and research in computer aided architectural design in europe ecaade covers europe middle east north africa and western asia and works in collaboration with the four other major international associations in the field acadia ascaad caadria caad futures and sigraadi ecaade has collaborated with these associations to devise an exciting international journal for the field called the international journal of architectural computing or short ijac
