what can contemporary media fandoms like anne rice star wars batman or sherlock holmes tell us about ancient christianity tom de bruin demonstrates how fandom and fan fiction are both analogous and incongruous with christian derivative works the often disparaging terms applied to christian apocrypha and pseudepigrapha such as fakes forgeries or corruptions are not sufficient to capture the production consumption and value of these writings de bruin reimagines a range of early christian works as fan practices exploring these ancient texts in new ways he takes the reader on a journey from the fix it fic endings of the gospel of mark to the subversive fan fictions of the testaments of the twelve patriarchs and from the densely populated storyworld of early christian art to the gatekeeping of christian orthodoxy using theory developed in fan studies de bruin revisits fundamental questions about ancient derivative texts why where they written how do they interact with more established texts in what ways does the consumption of derivative works influence the reception of existing traditions and how does the community react to these works this book sheds exciting and new light on ancient christian literary production consumption and transmission why were chinese and indian ways of thinking excluded from european philosophy in early modern times this is a study of what happened to the european understanding of china and india between the late 16th century and the first half of the 18th century investigating the description of these two asian civilizations during a century and a half of histories of philosophy this book accounts for the change of historiographical paradigms from neoplatonic philosophia perennis and spinozistic atheism to german eclecticism uncovering the reasons for inserting or excluding chinese and indian ways of thinking within the field of philosophy in early modern times it reveals the origin of the eurocentric understanding of philosophy as a greek european prerogative by highlighting how this narrowing and exclusion of non western ways of thought was a result of conviction of superiority and religious prejudice this book provides a new way of thinking about the place of asian traditions among world philosophies
