church is a religious word it is inherently religious in meaning we speak of going to church of building a church of going into the church of running the church of starting a church of the authority of the church of the organization of the church and the list could go on the point is that we really use the word as it is defined in our western dictionary but not in context with god's ideal of church the church it stretches far beyond what you see it accomplishes more than we dreamed was possible the church is life and death the church is god's strategy for reaching our world what we do inside the church matters god cares about the way we love each other and the way we pursue his mission the church is a group of redeemed people that live and serve together in such a way that their lives and communities are transformed the bible is one of the books that has aroused the most interest throughout history to the present day however there is one topic that has mostly been neglected and which today constitutes one of the most emblematic elements of the visual culture in which we live immersed the language of colour colour is present in the biblical text from its beginning to its end but it has hardly been studied and we appear to have forgotten that the detailed study of the colour terms in the bible is essential to understanding the use and symbolism that the language of colour has acquired in the literature that has forged european culture and art the objective of the present study is to provide the modern reader with the meaning of colour terms of the lexical families related to the green tonality in order to determine whether they denote only color and if so what is the coloration expressed or whether together with the chromatic denotation another reality inseparable from colour underlies along with the chromatic denotation there is another underlying reality that is inseparable from colour we will study the symbolism that which underpins some of these colour terms and which european culture has inherited this lexicographical study requires a methodology that allows us to approach colour not in accordance with our modern and abstract concept of colour but with the concept of the ancient civilations this is why the concept of colour that emerges from each of the versions of the bible is studied and compared with that found in theoretical reflection in both greek and latin colour thus emerges as a concrete reality visible on the surface of objects reflecting in many cases not an intrinsic quality but their state this concept has a reflection in the biblical languages since the terms of colour always describe an entity in this sense one can say that they are embodied and include within them a wide chromatic spectrum that is they are mostly polysemic structuralism through the componential analysis although providing interesting contributions had at the same time serious shortcomings when it came to the study of colour these were addressed through the theoretical framework provided by cognitive linguistics and some of its tools such as cognitive domains metonymy and metaphor our study then is one of the first to apply some of the contributions of cognitive linguistics to lexicography in general and particularly with reference to the hebrew greek and latin versions of the bible a further novel contribution of this research is that the meaning is expressed through a definition and not through a list of possible colour terms as happens in dictionaries or in studies referring to colour in antiquity the definition allows us to delve deeper and discover new nuances that enrich the understanding of colour in the three great civilizations involved in our study israel greece and rome
