the boundary politics of independent africa brings insights not only to africanists but also to students of international relations and more specifically of conflict the african states that gained independence during the 1950s and 1960s emerged within the boundaries established by their colonial rulers both african leaders and outside observers believed then that bitter conflicts would erupt over these borders this has not happened there have been numerous conflicts but only a very few have been major disruptions the prediction of boundary and territorial conflict saadia touval explains stemmed from the false assumption based on the european experience of irredentism and secession that the tribes and ethnic groups divided by boundaries would seek to unite to become members of the same state or to form a state of their own and therefore would challenge the boundaries dividing them an accessible and empirically rich introduction to canada s engagements in the world since confederation this book charts a unique path by locating canada s colonial foundations at the heart of the analysis canada in the world begins by arguing that the colonial relations with indigenous peoples represent the first example of foreign policy and demonstrates how these relations became a foundational and existential element of the new state colonialism the project to establish settler capitalism in north america and the ideological assumption that europeans were more advanced and thus deserved to conquer the indigenous people says shipley lives at the very heart of canada through a close examination of canadian foreign policy from crushing an indigenous rebellion in el salvador peacekeeping missions in the congo and somalia and cold war interventions in vietnam and indonesia to canadian participation in the war on terror canada in the world finds that this colonial heart has dictated canada's actions in the world since the beginning highlighting the continuities across more than 150 years of history shipley demonstrates that canadian policy and behaviour in the world is deep rooted and argues that changing this requires rethinking the fundamental nature of canada itself introduction the truth buried beneath time for centuries history has been distorted rewritten and weaponized to serve the interests of those who would rather build their thrones atop the ashes of truth than acknowledge the light of reality the world we inhabit today is not a reflection of human progress but rather the spoils of conquest where the victors have sculpted narratives that glorify their dominion while erasing the foundations upon which they stand at the heart of this deception lies a grievous lie that civilization knowledge and greatness were bestowed upon the world by those who wielded the sword of white supremacy but history untainted unmanipulated whispers a different story it is a story of africa and the africans who created the very foundation of human civilization and thus are the wellspring of human ingenuity africa has and will forever remain the birthplace of humanity scientific thought language philosophy spirituality and governance long before europe awoke to the concept of civilization africa had built empires that stood as monuments to human brilliance ancient egypt kemet kush carthage mali the great benin empire great zimbabwe and countless others before european explorers set foot on foreign shores africans had already mapped the stars mastered architecture and developed complex societies rooted in wisdom and balance with the natural world but this truth was stolen buried beneath colonial brutality exploitation and centuries of intellectual theft leaving generations to believe that africa was nothing but a land waiting to be discovered and civilized
