India's relation with other South Asian countries has been impacted by recent developments in the post cold war period. These include India's economic rise, the recent democratic transitions in many South Asian countries, and greater US engagement in the region following 9/11. This book is an effort to address these issues and examine their role in India's interactions with its neighbours. Indian Foreign Policy in Transition provides a comprehensive overview of India's relations with the South Asian countries of Pakistan, Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, and Nepal, Bhutan, and the Maldives, as well as looking at India's past and present foreign policy. The book analyses recent political changes and developments, identifies the broad tenets of India's policy towards the other countries of South Asia, and the domestic factors that impact India's policy in the region. It looks at India's historical patterns of interactions with its neighbours and describes recent developments in these South Asian countries and their perceptions of India, by providing specific examples of the major disputes and conflicts between India and its neighbours. The book explores the challenges inherent in promoting peace and cooperation and goes on to highlight the growing US influence in South Asia, providing an in-depth discussion on the opportunities and challenges facing India in the South Asia region. The book is an important contribution to Indian and South Asian politics, foreign policy, and international relations.

The geographical study of urban areas has become a fascinating ground for the human geographers. Most of the early studies of urban geography followed the approach of the currently fashionable paradigm. In recent years, urban geographers have been among the leaders in suggesting alternative geographical philosophies. Times new concepts, methodologies, and approaches are emerging in this sub-discipline of human geography. Consequently, more and more new and interesting literature is being produced by urban geographers. Each of the papers is a pioneer in nature and comprehensive in character. The volume begins with historical perspectives on the city, giving the overview of urban history to the students of urban social geography. The urban mosaic, the city in time and space, has been followed in the next two papers. Respectively, cities and their foundation vary from nation to nation and from region to region. The next paper deals with the city in the Soviet Union. City often been referred as a living organism, and this aspect has been vividly examined in the article entitled 'The city as a living space'. The demand for houses, residential mobility, and urban residential structure has been discussed in the seventh paper. The major changes in the modern cities have been taken care of in the paper on change in the late 20th century city. The last paper gives the patterns and tendencies of urban settlements. The behavioural and especially the structuralist arguments presented in the papers of this volume give a clear idea about the recent trends in urban geography. The work, it is hoped, will serve the needs of those who are examining the processes and functions of urban growth and the problems associated with urbanization, particularly in the third world countries.

The extent of urban air pollution in Pakistan, South Asia's most urbanized country, is among the world's most severe, significantly damaging human health, quality of life, and the economy and environment of Pakistan. The harm from Pakistan's urban air pollution is among the highest in South Asia, exceeding several high-profile causes of mortality and morbidity in Pakistan. Improved air quality management (AQM) in Pakistan can have notable economic and health benefits. For example, the estimated health benefits per dollar spent on cleaner diesel are approximately US$ 1.15 for light-duty diesel vehicles and US$ 1.52-4 for large buses and trucks. This report advocates that pakistan allocate resources to aqm because its air quality is severely affecting millions of pakistanis and because experiences around the world indicate that interventions can significantly improve air quality this report details a broad spectrum of research on pakistan s aqm challenges and identifies a comprehensive set of steps to improve air quality the research presented here underpins the conclusions that addressing pakistan s urban air pollution requires coordinated interventions to strengthen aqm build agencies institutional capacity bolster aqm s legal and regulatory framework implement policy reforms and investments and fill knowledge gaps however pakistan s policy makers face major obstacles including limited financial human and technical resources and can pursue only a few aqm interventions at the same time in the short term pakistan s aqm should give highest priority to reducing pollutants linked to high morbidity and mortality pm<sub>2.5</sub> and precursors like sox and nox from mobile sources a second level short term priority could be pm<sub>2.5</sub> sox and emissions of toxic metals from stationary sources an important medium term priority should be mass transportation in major cities controlling traffic and restricting private cars during high pollution episodes a long term priority could be taxing hydrocarbons based on their contribution to greenhouse gases medical geography deals with the study of spatial aspects of health and the delivery of health care today medical geography has achieved more recognition and status as a distinct sub field of human geography as compared to geography of education and crime the most obvious geographical perspective on health is the description of the spatial distribution of morbidity and mortality from various causes the opening chapter deals with the concept and definition of medical geography the social relevance scope and nature of medical geography have been discussed in this paper followed by the disease diffusion the other articles in the volume are ecological associative analysis geography epidemiology and human health the disease scenario and medical geography in the third world countries has been given in the seventh chapter health care delivery mental ill and enough to drive one mad written by the scholars of repute are the other papers of the volume the primary objective of the book is to provide guidance for the medical geography students it should also enable the committed students to learn and explore more about this important aspect of geography it is also hoped that the book will be of assistance to medical geography teachers anxious to keep themselves abreast of developments in their subject
