this volume explores word order phenomena across a phylogenetically diverse sample of languages covering a region loosely referred to as the western asian transition zone approximately corresponding to western iran northern iraq eastern turkey and the caucasus the sample includes representatives from four branches of indo european iranian hellenic armenian indo aryan as well as turkic semitic kartvelian northwest caucasian and northeast caucasian methodologically we apply a corpus based approach to word order building on two purpose built and fully accessible data bases of spoken language corpora wowa word order in western asia and hambam hamedan bamberg corpus of contemporary spoken persian the majority of the languages are historically ov yet exhibit high rates of post verbal elements and these constitute the primary focus of the volume one of the major findings is the importance of semantic role in determining pre versus post verbal placement of clausal constituents we identify a consistent bias towards post verbal placement of spatial goals which is amplified by increasing areal proximity to the vo languages of the southwestern periphery of the region semitic in the languages in and adjacent to the caucasus on the other hand we find stronger effects of information structure in triggering post verbal position along with contributions on individual languages and varieties the volume includes an overview chapter outlining the theoretical background and the data sources summary chapters on sub regions as well as contributions from an experimental and psycholinguistic perspective balochistan has been an important contact zone between the indian subcontinent and the iranian plateau it is a region where a variety of languages intermingle different religions jostle for attention and traditional ways of living are challenged by modernity the papers in this volume explore balochistan s linguistic socio political and cultural diversity balochistan is in many ways a marginalised region in pakistan iran and afghanistan traditional economies persist but modernity is rapidly gaining ground tensions between traditionalism and modernity are explored in several articles other articles examine the impact of economic development in balochistan political borders are always problematic and this is particularly so in southwest asia only in the late 19th century were the present borders between iran afghanistan and pakistan drawn as modern nation states were consolidated in the 20th century the baloch found themselves under the dominion of islamabad and tehran the baloch nationalist movement which is treated in a number of articles has been much stronger in former british india pakistan than in iran a powerful element of self definition in the middle east and south asia is religious belief in balochistan this may take the form of balochi sunni assertions contra persian shia ones or attempts by the minority zikri baloch to resist mainstream sunnism another source of social demarcation is tribal affiliation thus difference between self and other is not always baloch versus non baloch both religious and social demarcations are discussed in various articles in this volume the balochi language is the subject of several articles in the volume this language is a conglomerate of dialects with diverging grammatical systems and it is therefore by no means possible to speak of a standard balochi language throughout history the baloch have been in contact with other groups and this has influenced their language in the eastern parts of the balochi speaking region contact with indo aryan languages is particularly intense as it is in the western parts with persian but other languages are also spoken in balochistan this has created widespread multilingualism where one language the national language or an international language may be used for reading and writing and balochi as well as other local languages are used in various oral domains with a background survey of theories of language standardization and orthography of the development of other iranian standard languages and of balochi dialects and phonology this work provides a description and assessment of the development of balochi as a written literary language from the 1950s up to the present apart from a thorough investigation of existing publications and publishers the study consists of two main parts both of which are based on interviews with and articles written by leading literary baloch as well as on quantitative investigations balochi language is dealt with and investigations as to what dialects predominate in written balochi are presented the second part of the study deals with the orthography of balochi to each of these two parts of the study there belongs a text appendix the purpose of these appendices is to provide practical illustrations of the questions dealt with in the theoretical investigations balochi language which is less than 40 years old as a written literary medium is at present still in a formative stage thus even if there are certain tendencies towards linguistic and orthographic standardization there is as yet no single accepted standardized norm for written balochi an authoritative source of rich structured data for both the general public and linguistic experts each of the 191 chapters is written by an expert and devoted to a single language three indexes are included for cross reference language by country language by family language by alternate names entry headings include language name location family related languages dialects number of speakers origin and history orthography and basic phonology basic morphology basic syntax contact with other languages common words selected bibliography and efforts to preserve protect and promote the language facts about the world s languages has been honoured by choice magazine as an outstanding academic title of 2001
