this book is a study of the complicated disputes between 1945 and 1970 over the nationalisation of the british steel industry it examines in detail the ways in which the views of different classes and pressure groups in society were reflected in the history of steel nationalisation political correctness involves much more than a restriction of speech it represents a broad cultural transformation a shift in the way people understand things and organize their lives a change in the way meaning is made the problem addressed in this book is that for reasons the author explores some ways of making meaning support the creation and maintenance of organization while others do not organizations are cultural products and rely upon psychological roots that go very deep the basic premise of this book is that organizations are made up of the rules common understandings and obligations that the father represents and which are given meaning in the oedipal dynamic in anti oedipal psychology however they are seen as locuses of deprivation and structures of oppression anti oedipal meaning then is geared toward the destruction of organization in nietzsche and embodiment kristen brown reveals the smartness of bodies challenging the traditional view in the west that bodies are separate from and morally inferior to minds drawing inspiration from nietzsche brown vividly describes why the interdependence of mind and body matters both in nietzsche s writings and for contemporary debates non dualism theory merleau ponty criticism and metaphor studies activities spinal cord research and fasting and specific human experiences menses trauma and guilt brown s theories about the dynamic relationship between body and mind provide new possibilities for self understanding and experience the neoplatonists have a perfectionist view of freedom an entity is free to the extent that it succeeds in making itself good free entities are wholly in control of themselves they are self determining self constituting and self knowing neoplatonist philosophers argue that such freedom is only possible for non bodily things the human soul is free insofar as it rises above bodily things and engages in intellection but when it turns its desires to bodily things it is drawn under the sway of fate and becomes enslaved ursula coope discusses this notion of freedom and its relation to questions about responsibility she explains the important role of notions of self reflexivity in neoplatonist accounts of both freedom and responsibility in part i coope sets out the puzzles neoplatonist philosophers face about freedom and responsibility and explains how these puzzles arise from earlier discussions part ii explores the metaphysical underpinnings of the neoplatonist notion of freedom concentrating especially on the views of plotinus and proclus in what sense if any is the ultimate first principle of everything the one free if everything else is under this ultimate first principle how can anything other than the one be free what is the connection between freedom and nonbodiliness finally coope considers in part iii questions about responsibility arising from this perfectionist view of freedom why are human beings responsible for their behaviour in a way that other animals are not if we are enslaved when we act viciously how can we be to blame for our vicious actions and choices
