a contemporary autobiography of a science educator reminds readers that they teach who they are and understanding who they are is fundamental for meaningful communication and effective classroom instruction the book is for science educators teacher educators and others who wish to examine their own personal and professional identities in the social and cultural contexts in which their lives are embedded just as teaching can be viewed as relationship with others this contemporary autobiography is situated on the significance of relationship with self as a contemporary autobiography the narrative reveals the author's subjective truths while digging deeply into psychosocial motives of power and intimacy the author reflects on his personal choices and career decisions that led him into and out of high school science teaching the book contains stories and reflections from summer work camp experiences undergraduate college days teacher preparation episodes and high school science teaching story themes are diversity and leadership group identity and motivation urban teaching and teacher preparation and high school science teaching these themes evolve out of nuclear episodes of the author's storied life that brings present day understanding and meaning from past actions and interactions this kind of critical introspection may hold special relevance for teachers teacher educators and others who wish to make their own identities salient and relevant to their own needs and interests as well as the needs and interests of students teacher candidates and clients whom they serve the editors and contributors to this volume should be justifiably proud of their participation in the tenth triennial meeting of the chemical signals in vertebrates international symposium this meeting was held 27 years after the initial gathering of participants in saratoga springs new york from june 6 to 9 1976 subsequent meetings have been held every three years in syracuse new york sarasota florida laramie wyoming oxford england philadelphia pennsylvania tubingen germany ithaca new york and krakow poland this tenth anniversary symposium was held from july 29 through august 1 in corvallis oregon and was hosted by the zoology department and biology programs of oregon state university this book also represents the tenth in a series of books on chemical communication chemical ecology olfactory and vomeronasal research in vertebrate species the species covered in the chapters herein range from fish to mammals including humans by taxonomic breakdown the mammals are the most represented in number of species and chapter contributions however the hosts of the meeting endeavored to have some representative contributions covering all of the major vertebrate taxa as in past years the meeting was well represented with just over 100 participants from 13 different nations plenary talks focused on some of the non mammalian groups that have tended to be less represented in these symposia thus we had a very nice overview of comparisons and contrasts of invertebrate chemical communication to vertebrate systems each number is the catalogue of a specific school or college of the university the idea behind this book grew out of a research project launched by the international group step science and technology in the european peripheries established in 1999 by historians of science from spain portugal belgium greece turkey italy russia sweden and denmark the aim has been to re examine the historical and we might also add the geographical character of science and technology and their institutions in regions and societies within europe usually outside mainstream historical analysis the intended activities of the group have been framed by the following issues reconsidering the centre periphery model which has been the dominant model in studies on the transfer of scientific knowledge bringing to the fore the concept of scientific appropriation and attempting to study the construction of various local discourses systematically examining the relationship between science politics and the rhetoric of modernisation in societies in the european periphery joining forces to find out more about scientific travels using networks to further understand the dynamics and role of scholars on societies in the periphery of europe intensifying efforts to catalogue and make available to the international community the archival material in the peripheral countries cc uoa gr step on page 2 as a result of these programmatic guidelines a meeting was held in lisbon in september 2000 in which the topic of scientific travels was used as a particularly good unifying theme on which to base a discussion of case studies involving the european peripheries in v 1 8 the final number consists of the commencement annual vols for 1956 57 issued in 2 parts pt 1 industrial technology degree pt 2 management and general education this lab text describes the tools and strategies of green chemistry and the lab experiments that allow investigation of organic chemistry concepts and techniques in a greener laboratory setting students acquire the tools to assess the health and environmental impacts of chemical processes and the strategies to improve develop new processes that are less harmful to human health and the environment the curriculum introduces a number of state of the art experiments and reduces reliance on expensive environmental controls such as fume hoods provided by publisher
