this is a masterful study of the ways in which sex and law were inextricably intertwined in the elaboration of french rule in algeria its great virtue is to demonstrate in careful detail with an impressive range of material from court records to novels exactly how the conquest of algeria repeatedly challenged the very ideals of the secular universalism in whose name colonization was carried out joan wallach scott author of sex and secularism during more than a century of colonial rule over algeria the french state shaped and reshaped the meaning and practice of muslim law by regulating it and circumscribing it to the domain of family law while applying the french civil code to appropriate the property of algerians in sex law and sovereignty in french algeria 1830 1930 judith surkis traces how colonial authorities constructed muslim legal difference and used it to deny algerian muslims full citizenship in disconnecting muslim law from property rights french officials increasingly attached it to the bodies beliefs and personhood surkis argues that powerful affective attachments to the intimate life of the family and fantasies about algerian women and the sexual prerogatives of muslim men supposedly codified in the practices of polygamy and child marriage shaped french theories and regulatory practices of muslim law in fundamental and lasting ways women's legal status in particular came to represent the dense relationship between sex and sovereignty in the colony this book also highlights the ways in which algerians interacted with and responded to colonial law ultimately this sweeping legal genealogy of french algeria elucidates how the muslim question in france became and remains a question of sex

Keaton provides the most in depth analysis of the predicament of French Arabs and Africans living in the suburbs of Paris. One can read the book through the lens of such great African American writers and activists as Richard Wright, James Baldwin and Malcolm X. It contains an implicit warning to you France not to repeat the American racism in your country. From the foreword by Manthia Diawara. This book provides a detailed analysis of the political arguments about the place of Muslims in contemporary France and also discusses the ideas put forward by a range of Muslim thinkers. France has become the setting for one of the most important conflicts in the modern world. On the one hand it possesses a rigidly organized centralized state whose bureaucrats and civil servants are animated by a code of secular activism. On the other hand France is also the home for Europe's largest Muslim minority variously estimated at numbering between four and six million people. This means that in terms of simple numbers France can be counted as the world's fifteenth Islamic power. Previous conflicts with religion have left a deep impression on French political culture. From the sixteenth and seventeenth century conflicts between Catholics and Protestants played to the formation of the collaborationist Vichy government in 1940. In recent decades Muslims have been stigmatized as an irreconcilable minority unable to adapt to the secular culture of the majority of French citizens. This work draws out the political implications of the current conflict. It is based on events and publications produced in a single five year period beginning with the shock of the 2002 presidential elections in which Le Pen was the second most successful candidate ranging through the legislation of March 2004 which banned the Islamic headscarf from French state schools and which sparked off a series of bad tempered exchanges between left and right wing French nationalists, anti racism campaigners, secularists, anti clericals and a variety of Muslim authors.
