the third volume covers the period from 1860 to 1920 beginning with the jews slavery and the civil war and concluding with the rise of reform judaism as well as the increasing spirit of secularization that characterized emancipated prosperous liberal jewry before it was confronted by a rising tide of american anti semitism in the 1920s medieval towns were vibrant and complex social environments where diverse groups and lifestyles encountered and influenced each other surprisingly in the study of urban archaeology the aristocracy one of the leading and most influential groups in medieval society has so far been neglected this book puts aristocracy in towns on the archaeological research agenda the interdisciplinary and comparative study explores the significance and representation of aristocrats and their interaction with civic elites in sea trading towns of the southwestern baltic from the 12th to the 14th centuries essentially however the analysis of urban elite culture leads to discussion of a much more fundamental issue the informative value of material culture for the investigation of social conditions the book provides new archaeological approaches to the study of social differentiation in towns and contributes to a deeper understanding of the complexity of urban social structures ck2 is a protein serine threonine kinase which is a highly conserved and ubiquitous protein kinase it is localized in the cytoplasmic and nuclear compartments which accords with its multiple functional activities in the cell pertinent to this is also the recognition that a large number of putative substrates for this kinase have been identified in various compartments of the cell new evidence from several laboratories has further reinforced the involvement of ck2 in signal transduction related to many cellular functions thus underscoring the significance of its functional role in normal and abnormal cell growth and proliferation this volume provides an overview of the state of knowledge concerning this intriguing protein kinase it brings together contributions from leading investigators engaged in research in this field key developments during the past three years pertain to the elaboration of the crystal structure and definition of novel functions of the kinase such as its role as an inhibitor of apoptosis additionally the shuttling of the kinase to various compartments in response to physiological and stress stimuli appears to be a key feature of the functional regulation of its activity in the cell this volume consists consists of forty contributions written by an internationally renowned selection of scholars the authors adopt an interdisciplinary methodology examining both literary and archaeological sources and a comparative perspective that transgresses national chronological and cultural boundaries in order to investigate the nature of the links between text and image this multifaceted approach to the study of ancient artifacts enables the authors to treat art and artistic production as activities that do not merely mirror social or cultural relationships but rather and more significantly as activities that create social and cultural relationships the essays in this book are motivated by their authors belief that there is no simple direct link between art and myths art and text or art and ritual and that art should not be delegated to the role of a by product of a literate culture instead the contextual and symbolic analyses of artifacts and representations offered in this volume elucidate how art actively shaped myth how it changed texts how it transformed ritual and how it altered the course of local regional and mediterranean histories includes entries for maps and atlases some nos include announcement of courses
