excerpt from a course in argumentative writing this book arises out of certain beliefs concerning the study of argumentation which though perhaps not wholly novel have as yet found no recognition in the literature of the subject the first of these beliefs is that the principles of argumentation should be derived by the student from its practice before the practice is made to conform to the principles in short one may as well acknowledge it a firm faith in the so called inductive method as applied to argumentation lies at the root of this treatise such a faith implies of course that the student should be asked to dissect out logical formulæ for himself from his own unconscious reasonings using them when discovered to render those reasonings more exact the construction and the rough analysis of arguments would similarly precede the formulation of any principles of persuasion such a plan as this it will be noted assigns to the student a task at once more difficult and more stimulating than that which the usual methods require he is not asked simply to accept certain logical formulæ from his own writing and then to use them for such modification of the writing as may seem necessary about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works over the course of this book students learn how to write formal arguments by working collaboratively with their peers to examine argument models plan for their writing and gather evidence students will practice writing independently and engage in peer review to revise their work by the end of the unit each student will have written a fully developed argument
