this monograph surveys the results of government intervention in the market for retirement income provision throughout the world the authors begin by looking at high income democracies in which governments have to a large degree taken over the function of providing pensions they find that state provision crowds out private provision and places a considerable fiscal burden on developed country governments this fiscal burden is then combined with complex regulatory systems that are imposed on the private sector and which make pensions incomprehensible furthermore as the authors show the ageing populations may make meaningful reform of government pensions programmes impossible as grey electors flex their muscles the authors find the same patterns in middle income and low income countries state pension systems are often found hand in hand with a lack of security partly because of the problems of corruption and inflation the state frequently does its best to crowd out private initiative but where they are allowed to families make provision for retirement in all sorts of ingenious ways the authors reject the world bank blueprint of formal structured pension systems they suggest instead that governments focus on ensuring that the legal and financial infrastructure exists to allow people to make proper provision for their retirement so called market failure will always ensure that the result is imperfect but by comparison government failure around the world has had catastrophic effects
