examines how postwar french writers constitute the thinking subject and reshape its relation to the external social world joseph acquisto analyzes the writings of three thinkers during and shortly after the second world war who address the question of what it means to think and what it means to constitute oneself as a thinking subject at a time that seems to come after everything with the ruins of attacked cities echoing the remains of a philosophical tradition that was confident in its establishment of human beings as rational of reason leading to progress and of both the self and the world as knowable what georges bataille calls inner experience and emil cioran labels thinking against oneself is something akin to a drama not a mere representation of the self in relation to the world but a process of remapping the relation of subject to object of thought dialectically acquisto argues that both writers adopt an anti systematic approach to thinking that implicates fragmentary writing as a way of turning answers about subject object relations into questions acquisto contends that this stands in contrast to the approach of clément rosset whose affirmation of the inaccessibility of the real leads to an anti intellectual grace filled affirmation of life as it is given under the guise of what he calls the tragic bringing together thinkers that have seldom been discussed in a comparative light thought as experience in bataille cioran and rosset examines the affective dimensions of thought as experience and considers the political stakes of postwar thought as out of order with the world from which it springs the holy trinity is the oldest idea of christian hope the study of being or ontology was once regarded as a seminal preparation for the study of god as the creative cause of all being in theology yet due to a series of theological mistakes metaphysics came to be separated from the trinity before god came to be conceived as the supreme being of all beings in general metaphysics natural theology and modern ontology the analytic and continental philosophical traditions have since tended to treat the trinity as at best superfluous and at worst redundant to modern formal ontologies yet the postmodern collapse of all such formal ontologies has prepared the path for a renewed study of metaphysics or ontology that shares in participation with the trinity new trinitarian ontologies names a creative response to this pivotal collapse of modern formal ontologies if ontology cannot contain but rather more radically points to god and if all nature thus tends towards the supernatural the angelic and the metaphysical then we should renew the study of the metaphysics or ontology of the trinity this volume represents a collection of responses to this challenge of rendering ontology in a trinitarian style
