in a postsecular cultural situation the conditions for understanding and communicating a christian tradition have changed none of the established religions can any longer claim monopoly in the marketplace of religions a claim of this study is that a postsecular situation characterized among other things by dwindling memberships in established churches as well as a new visibility of alternative religious expressions opens up a need to reflect on alternative ways of understanding christianity in its context this study focuses on the question how can a christian tradition be communicated understandably in a postsecular context in traditional terms how can christian witness be understood in our situation it is to this need according to this study that the ecclesiology of stanley hauerwas provides a meaningful perspective this perspective becomes relevant because in a postsecular context a christian church even a folk church cannot assume to be in a position of majority or power there is therefore a need to ask how to understand christianity as a community of witness that is neither in power nor a majority the study suggests that embodiment of christian convictions becomes a central factor in a meaningful postsecular notion of witness
