the recent explosion of unsolicited material written for the world's greatest sexiest entertainment medium has largely produced a mountain of wasted paper. Truth is the many who write from scratch no matter how talented have more chance of winning the lottery than creating an excellent script. The few who achieve success do so because they have shed the blood, sweat and tears necessary to master the elaborate art and craft of screenwriting. This book explodes the myth that a screenplay is the easiest literary form to master, navigates a relatively painless path through the screenwriting labyrinth and offers an easy to digest step by step guide to writing a script from inception to completion. What's in it: the main areas covered are motivation, research, development, genre, idea, story, plot, audience, character, action, setting, structure, format, dialogue, synopses, treatments, drafts, marketing, the industry. There's also a glossary of commonly used jargon to further demystify the process.

Covers the basics of scriptwriting from deciding on a story and characters through the finished work and analyzes a sample script.

The Hours is David Hare's screen adaptation of Michael Cunningham's Pulitzer Prize winning novel. In Richmond, England in 1923 Virginia Woolf is setting out to write the first words of her new book. In Los Angeles in 1951 a housewife Laura Brown is contemplating suicide and in present day New York a hostess Clarissa Vaughan is planning a party for her friends in extraordinary and ingenious ways. The film shows how a single day and the novel Mrs Dalloway inextricably link the lives of three very different women.

Guide for beginners from idea to final script to marketing with advice from successful film writers, filmmakers and film executives.

Screenwriting tip 99: voice over usually feels like scaffolding you know something you left in there when you were constructing the first draft but really should have torn out after it served its purpose. Screenwriting tip 120: always remember that funny trumps everything. Your script could be written in crayon with your name spelled wrong on the cover but if it's genuinely funny none of that matters. Screenwriting tip 156: the easiest way to write kick ass protagonists is to make them incredibly good at what they do. Confused at the outline stage, stuck in the swamp of act two, don't know who your protagonist is or where she's going, you might feel like a hack but don't worry you're not alone. Even the most experienced writers feel like this at times. Sometimes we just need a few short pointers and reminders to set us on the path again.
